

YACHTSMAN EASILY TOLD.

But Not by Showy Uniform or Affection of Sea-Wind Aids When Ashore.

It is easy enough to distinguish a yachtsman from a non-yacht owning member of a yacht club, says the Detroit Free Press. The yachtsman is seldom seen in his yachting togs, while the non-yacht owner is apt to wear the regulation blue serge suit and the yachting cap and to have the trefoil on the sleeve of his coat and the insignia on his cap.

The yachtsman of to-day when he fits out his yacht will order a cap for each club to which he belongs, and he will wear these caps only at official functions. They are never worn ashore except to some important meeting or to some reception when it is proper to wear the uniform. The caps are not even worn on board the yacht.

He has his uniform which he puts on when he has to go aboard the flagship, but it is seldom worn ashore except at the clubhouse.

Men who own racing yachts dress themselves as comfortably as possible. When starting in a race the amateurs usually wear duck or flannel trousers, sweaters and caps, sometimes of cloth and sometimes of duck. The duck hat has become very popular.

For lounging on a cruising yacht flannel suits and straw hats or caps are the proper things. The yachting suits are uncomfortable and hot, and a man nowadays dresses as comfortably as he can.

For evening wear the real yachtsman is more formal. His evening suit is braided with gold and decorated with gilt buttons.

The coat is cut square like a double-breasted sack, but it does not lap over and will not button. On the collar the insignia are embroidered indicating the rank of the wearer.

The sleeves are decorated like those of a naval officer's coat. A commodore has three gold stars, a vice commodore two stars, and a rear commodore one star. Over this glittering uniform is worn a long cape coat that fastens loosely around the neck.

MOST REMARKABLE WOMAN.

At the Age of 120 Strong-Looking and Lived to the Age of 140 Years.

The statement that an old woman has "cast" a fresh set of teeth at the age of 90 has reminded a contributor of the Liverpool Post of a much more extraordinary case than that. In the edition of Thomas Pennant's "Tour in Scotland," printed at Warrington, by W. Evers, in 1774, among other fine engravings is a portrait of "The Old Countess of Desmond," in Dupplin castle, N. B., and particulars of her age are given in the text. This portrait represents her at the age of 120, a firm-mouthed, strongly-marked woman, who lived to the great age of 140. She was the daughter of a Fitzgerald, of Drunanna, in Ireland, and married, in the reign of Edward IV., James, fourteenth earl of Desmond; she was in England in the same reign, and danced at court with the king's brother, the duke of Gloucester, and died in the reign of James I. The year before her death (when 139) she took a journey to London to solicit relief from the king, the Desmond "house" having been reduced to a state of poverty. Francis Bacon, in his "History of Life and Death," states that this lady "did dentise twice or thrice, casting her old teeth and others coming in their place."

Food, Not Form.

Assistant Attorney General Robb while in a Washington restaurant sat near a man from Texas who evidently had not traveled to any extent. The waiter said to the stranger from the Lone Star state:

"Here's the bill of fare, sir." "Say, look here!" shouted the Texan; "I haven't had a mouthful to eat yet, and I'll be hanged if I'll pay any bill till I get the goods. Fetch on your vittles first and I'll pay for 'em afterward."—N. Y. Herald.

Cure for Pessimism.

Let pessimism once take hold of the mind and life is all topsy-turvy, all vanity and vexation of spirit. There is no cure for individual or social disorder, except in forgetfulness and annihilation.—Helen Keller.

WOMEN OUTRAGED IN GERMANY.

In Spite of Conservatism There Has Been Steady Progress Made by the Sex.

Women have become an indispensable factor in the German postal telegraph and telephone service, it seems, in spite of the conservatism which prevented the utilization of feminine activities in public work in Germany until nearly half a century later than in France and England. United States Consul Monaghan, of Chemnitz, in a recent communication to the United States department of commerce and labor, reviews briefly the conditions and requirements which are of interest as showing the progress of women in the fatherland.

It is not every woman who can obtain a position in the German postal service, so strict are the government regulations respecting age, character, education and health. A government medical examiner pronounces upon the health, which must be perfect; the age must not exceed 30 or be under 18, and a good common school education is a primary requisite. Possessing all these qualifications, the woman candidate is eligible only to a position as assistant in the post office, and the highest salary she can hope for is $119 a year. In the telegraph and telephone service, however, all grades of positions are open to women, though the rules of admission are equally strict, and no women with children are employed. Four thousand women are now engaged in the telephone service of the German empire, it is stated, 1,000 of them being in Berlin. The hours are light, ranging from six to eight hours a day.

"The highest pay which a woman can draw in German telephone offices is $387, which is said to afford a comfortable living in Germany, but it is a low wage compared to that to be obtained in England, where experienced telephone clerks get $600 and chief supervisors are paid as high as $2,550. In Germany, however, it must be noted that women on their withdrawal from active labor after the prescribed number of years of faithful work are awarded a government pension on the same plane with the men.

LONG-HORNED CATTLE GONE

Breed Once So Common in Texas Displaced by Stock of Greater Value.

There was a time when the "Texas steer" bred of cattle covered the grazing grounds of the southwest. They were the descendants of the long-horned cattle which the early Spanish explorers and adventurers brought from their homes across the seas. Hundreds of thousands of them ranged the unfenced pastures, rendering little more than a small tribute of hide and tallow to the Mexican or beef to the Indian. Finally, the cowboy came into existence, and these wild denizens of the plains were dragged from their high estate and became the subjects of sordid commerce, says the Kansas City Journal.

These cattle were rough in appearance and usually brown, dun and black in color, there being no deep reds and roans. Their horns, however, were their really distinguishing features. These were certainly immense, often from four to five feet across from tip to tip. They were naturally wild brutes. Some of them could never be rounded up, but had to be shot in order that the others might be got under some kind of control. There were in every herd a few fighters which the cowboys called "mossheads." They would fight viciously among themselves or with the other cattle and would frequently gore the horses of the cowboys to death.

The longhorns have now practically all disappeared. Their place has been taken by graded and thoroughbred cattle of a much larger size and value.

The Virtue of Patience.

"Chillon," said Uncle Rastus, "dar's a gran' lesson to be learned f'm de foolish cutworm. He gits up early in de mo'nin' an' goes fo'th an' eats de little sproutin' melon vine. Ef he had sense enough to stay in bed a while longer de vine 'd produce a melon an' he might eat sump'n wuff while. Patience, chillun, am a great virtue."—Brooklyn Eagle.

The Saddle Stallion, Sir Melrose

Reg. No. 2106, Vol. V. N. S. H. R.

Sir Melrose, black stallion, 15½ hands, foaled May 10th, 1900. Sire, Star Rose 161; grand sire, Montrose (106). Melrose's dam, Lulu May (1417) by Chesnut Rose (231); second dam black bell by Black Squirrel (58); third dam by old Green Mountain. Melrose is bred in the purple on both sire and dam sides. Old Montrose 106 and Old Black Squirrel 58, were two of the best saddle stallions the world has ever produced. Melrose was a winner at our great state fair last year and I predict he will be a great show horse in the future. He has as much natural style as anybody's horse. Kind disposition. People that want to raise fancy saddlers, high style, can't miss it by breeding to Melrose.

Terms $15 for Live Colt

At the same place the Great All Purpose Stallion, MAX O'RELL, Red bay horse, 16½ hands high, fine grain and tail, and a good horse all round. Sire, Silver Rose 303, by Kentucky Eagle 350. Kentucky Eagle by Black Eagle 64, he by King William 67. Max O'Rell's dam, Bay Annie by Bay Splendor 1784, 2d dam, Old Bird a Morgan Mare. You must see this horse to appreciate him. $10 FOR LIVE COLT

At the same barn, the two Great Show Jacks, Joe Jiffin and Limestone Louis, will serve mares. Joe Jiffin $12.50 for live colt, and Limestone Louis will be allowed to serve a few mares at $10 for live colt. Joe Jiffin and Limestone are both fine bred jacks. Joe Jiffin sired by Black Mammoth, he by Old Superior Mammoth, the great sweepstake jack at the World's Fair. This jack has proven himself a great mule jack and a prize winner at our state fair. I bought Limestone Louis at the great jack sale at Limestone Valley Farm, March 1st, and think he will make a great jack. Sire Limestone Mammoth, one of the greatest show and jennet jacks on earth. Limestone Louis was foaled March 4, 1902. Limestone Louis, dam by Clapp's jack. Old Chief, one of the best mule jacks in the state.

The above stock will make the season of 1904 at my barn one mile south of Lexington on the Columbus road at the following terms: Money due when colt sucks or mare sold or removed from the neighborhood.

ASHBROOK

Trotting Record 2:13 1-2, Winning Race
Sire of Donny Brook, record 2:22½, (3) yr.

Will make the season of 1904 at my stables, three miles east of Lexington, on the Dover road at the extreme low price of

$15.00

With the privilege of breeding until you get a colt. Money due when colt starts or mare parted with. Pasture for mares $20 a week. All care taken, but no responsibility for accidents.

ASHBROOK is a seal brown, 15½ hands high, with perfection of conformation and temper and a sure breeder, and a first class trotter in every particular as his performance will show.

Ashbrook's present record is 2:10¼ in a winning race. He has a two-year-old record 2:10¼; 3-year-old, 2:18; 4-year-old, 2:21¼; 5-year-old, 2:17½, and at 6-year-old, 2:10¼. His colts are making a wonderful showing for their opportunities. For pedigree extension send for catalogue.

PEDIGREE—Sired by the Great Ashland Wilkes, 2:19; first dam of Ashbrook is by Young Wilkes, son of the immortal George Wilkes family. So you see he's an inbred Wilkes, the blood so much sought after by the breeders of trotting and fine harness horses.
